

Cookie policy

www.kclegal.eu

We kindly inform you that our website uses cookie files.

Cookie files are small text files which are downloaded to a final device of a user, in order to ensure the correct working and optimal usage of the features of our website.

Please be informed that cookie files on our website do not allow us to identify a user but are only used for the purpose of gathering statistic / collective data.

Our website uses the following cookie files:

Session cookies – these are temporary files stored in the memory of a browser until the session is over, that is to the moment of closing a browser. These files are obligatory in order to ensure correct working of certain applications and functionalities.

Permanent cookies – these files allow for an easier use of frequently visited websites (e.g. ensure the optimal navigation, remember the chosen resolution, layout of the contents etc.). These files remain in the memory of a browser for a longer period of time. It depends on the choice of a user made by them in the settings of a browser.

Each user of our website can manage the cookie files by changing the settings of their browser.

Any user, anytime, can decide to change the mode in which the cookies are used or are made available to us . They should use the option concerning the usage of the cookies which is available in the setting function of their browser, usually in the “internet options” menu.

At the same time, we remind you that deactivation of the cookie files that are obligatory, may cause difficulties in operating the website or may even disable a user to access our website.

In case of any questions, please contact us at: info@kclegal.eu